

Developmental Products (Dx Products)

PROZYME continues to develop new products to meet new market niches and at the specific request of our customers. We welcome interaction before setting final specifications for our Developmental Products and can offer samples for evaluation.

Developmental Products are differentiated by the D in the lot number. Once specifications have been set, a unique numerical code is assigned which defines the product, the process and the specifications.

If you would like to add urgency to any project, test a beta sample or suggest a new product, please call or e-mail.
